Global Leaders for Young Children meet in Reggio Emilia, Italy

The warmth of friendship was felt through the crisp air as the Global Leaders for Young Children convened at the International Winter Institute in Reggio Emilia, Italy, in February. This group of 12 leaders from India, China, Brazil, Kenya, and Poland first met at the World Forum in Montreal last May. Reunited again, the group had the opportunity to learn, discuss, and debate the philosophy and advocacy strategies that lead to Reggio's community-wide early childhood success that is now celebrated around the world. In addition, each team of leaders presented their own advocacy projects, which inspired all of us to return home and work harder to improve the conditions for all young children around the world.

World Forum National Representatives span the globe

When the World Forum Foundation wishes literally to reach out to all corners of the world, it does so through its active and vibrant network of National Representatives who are located in over 80 nations worldwide. These National Representatives represent Early Childhood Care and Education services in their countries, and are the lead voices for their nations in the global dialogue of the World Forum Foundation.

As National Representatives these leaders play a key communication and networking role in their nation for all World Forum activities. They serve as the primary contact between the governing board of the World Forum Foundation and the early childhood community in their respective nations. National Representatives are appointed for a two year term to

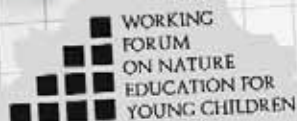

- Promote the active participation of their nation's early childhood community in World Forum activities and to
- Enrich the content of World Forum activities by ensuring their nation's individual perspectives are shared.

National Representatives, sharing their Early Childhood voices with the world - a World Forum Foundation global initiative in action.
